

Acknowledgments

I would like to thank Tyndale House, Cambridge, for allowing my residency during the 2018 Fall (Michaelmas in the UK) semester and access to their incredible library devoted to biblical studies. I will never forget “Tea Time” and the numerous conversations I had with colleagues there at Tyndale, who helped me formulate my ideas and sharpened my wit. I would also like to thank the Divinity School of Cambridge for a Visiting Fellowship during this time that allowed access to the main library at Cambridge, the school’s library, and many of the other libraries at Cambridge University. Without both the help from Tyndale House and the Cambridge Divinity School, I would not have been able to do the necessary research for this book. I would particularly like to thank Peter Williams of Tyndale House, as well as Peter Harland, Administrative Officer for the Divinity School. Katharine Dell of Cambridge University deserves special thanks, who assisted me in numerous ways and made the stay in the UK an incredible joy. I am proud to call her a friend.

I would also like to thank Lubbock Christian University, particularly the Bible College, for allowing me a semester sabbatical during this time and financial assistance. I want to personally thank Jesse Long Jr., and Jeff Cary, both my deans during a transition period at the university, for enabling my leave and greatly assisting with funding. Also, special thanks go to Al Roberts, Chief Financial Officer, for the actual collecting of the funds that enabled this stay. Thanks also go to Dr. Stacy Patty, Dean of the Honors College, who also assisted financially and in many other ways. Thanks also go to my former provost, Rod Blackwood and my current provost, Foy Mills, who has helped with recent international conference funding. Many thanks go to Barbara Slate and the librarians, who had to process numerous interlibrary loans for this project. Thanks also go to Mark Lanier and Charles Mickey, of Lanier Theological Library, for assistance in obtaining the Tyndale residency.

Also, several of my LCU colleagues allowed me to bounce ideas off them and helped me systematize my thoughts. These include Michael Martin, Stacy Patty, and Jesse Long Jr. I would also like to thank my Doktorvater, Herbert Huffmon, who provided helpful references. And much thanks certainly go to my multitasking daughter, Lauren Rachel Sneed, who did the illustrations, in spite of being an R.N. during the pandemic and having to work long hours.

I would like to thank the anonymous reviewer, who gave helpful advice in reorganizing the manuscript. The book’s current structure greatly enhances my overall argumentation.

Last but not least, thanks go to my wife Arlene, who accompanied me to Cambridge and has had to endure my many long hours at libraries, offices, and my constant laptop work on the sectional in our den, which was littered with many piles of books and folders—it still is. She too became almost as passionate as I did regarding the Joban beasts and always made the hard work I did so much more manageable.
