

Contents

Acknowledgements	11
1. Introduction: Research & Approach	13
2. From Candia to Venice: A Life of Faith, Politics & Scholarship	21
2.1. The Early Years in Crete (1607–1645)	21
2.1.1. Family and Studies	21
2.1.2. Prelate and Teacher in Candia	26
2.2. The Warring Years in Crete (1645–1654)	30
2.2.1. Initiatives for the Defence of Besieged Candia	30
2.2.2. Preacher of Freedom in Candia	34
2.2.3. Relations with the Catholics	36
2.2.4. Preparations for Settlement in Venice	40
2.3. The Years of Exile: Venice (1655–1665)	44
2.3.1. New Life, Old Habits	44
2.3.2. Addressing the Tsardom of Russia and the Kingdom of France	46
2.3.3. Preserving Old Networks, Promoting New Acquaintanceships	48
2.3.4. Publishing in the Name of Education	50
2.3.5. Departing to Corfu	56
2.4. The Years of Exile: Corfu (1665–1680)	59
2.4.1. Reconstructing the Monastery of Panaghia Paleopolis	59
2.4.2. Anti-Jewish and Anti-Muslim Rhetoric	62
2.4.3. Composing Didaskalia : A Manual for Orthodox Preachers	65
2.4.4. Elected Archbishop in the Metropolis of Phialdelphia	68
2.5. The Late Years in Venice (1681–1685)	71
2.5.1. Pastoral Activity in the San Giorgio dei Greci	71
2.5.2. Social Recognition and Death	73

3. A Loyal Subject to the Most Serene Republic of Venice: The concept of Interconfessional Tolerance in the context of the War of Candia . . .	81
3.1. Introduction	81
3.2. Preaching Piety and Freedom in Besieged Candia: A Promoter of Venetian Authority	85
3.3. Response on the Terirem (1649): A Theological Discussion with the Venetian Provveditore	101
3.4. Obfuscation of the False Believers (1653): A Theological Controversy with Political Parameters	107
3.5. Triumph Against the Reign of the Turks (1657): The Common Faith in the Service of Diplomacy	121
4. A Greek Orthodox Intellectual in Latin Europe: The Concept of Interconfessional Conciliation in the World of Letters	139
4.1. Introduction	139
4.2. Editing the Greek Church Fathers (1658). The Project of François Combefis and the Shade of Louis XIV	142
4.3. Between Education and Politics. Thesaurus Encyclopaedicae Basis (1659) and Harmonia Definitiva Entium (1661)	154
4.4. A Fervent Follower of Aristotle, a Pious Orthodox Christian. Approaching the Seventeenth-Century Greek Aristotelianism . . .	166
4.5. Contributing to the Greek Schools of the Serenissima . Networks and Initiatives	175
5. Standing in Venice, Staring at Constantinople. The Concept of Interconfessional Piety in the Metropolis of Philadelphia	185
5.1. Introduction	185
5.2. Matters of Correct Doctrine and Religious Decency: Correspondence with the Orthodox Greeks of Dalmatia and Istria.	187
5.3. Addressing the Orthodox Patriarchs: Credentials of Piety, Integrity and Trust	205
5.4. Romaios, Graikos, Hellen: An Overview of Gerasimos Vlachos' Perception on Early-Modern Greek Identity	219
6. A Reader of Faith, a Seeker of Knowledge: Approaching Interconfessionality in Gerasimos Vlachos' Library	231
6.1. Introduction	231
6.2. The Accumulation and the Dispersion of the Library	235

6.3. The Contents of the Library	242
6.3.1. Theology: Books on Ancient Patristic Tradition, Medieval Scholastic Theology and Early Modern Polemical Literature	242
6.3.1.1. Biblical and Patristic Tradition	243
6.3.1.2. Medieval and Early Modern Scholasticism	250
6.3.1.3. Early-Modern Polemical Theology	253
6.3.1.4. Catholic Sermons and Manuals for Preachers	261
6.3.1.5. The Synagogues . Readings on Faith of Personal Choice and Labour	264
6.3.2. Philosophy and Science: Books on Ancient Greek Philosophy, Medieval Aristotelianism and Early Modern Science	267
6.3.3. Philology: Readings on Classical Literature, Grammar and Rhetoric in the Context of School Education	275
6.3.4. Miscellaneous: Readings on a Quest for Knowledge	284
6.4. Conclusions	292
7. Final Conclusions	297
8. Bibliography	305
Register of Names	321